Keynote

Celebrating Auckland's North Shore by detailing the personal journeys of fifty four community leaders who have been at the forefront of community development.

Description

These inspiring stories and photographs capture a legacy of community building over fifty years to make the North Shore a better place for its residents. It is an inspiring collection of stories and photographs of community workers and leaders; some are well known, others less so, but all have made a real difference to the lives of residents on the Shore. Each person brings their passion for community building to the fore, and the oral history approach to this project, weaves a tapestry of stories from the past and the present. Everyone who dips in and out of this amazing collection will be inspired by it.

Sales Points

- A unique heritage publication on Auckland's North Shore community.
- A stunning treasure trove of photographs old and new of people and places on the North Shore/Te Raki Paewhenua.
- Locally known and not so well known identities from the North Shore of Auckland whose personal stories are published for the first time.
- Elevating community leadership to celebrity status.

Biographies

Ruth Greenaway, Writer. Ruth is an independent oral historian, working primarily in the not for profit sector, documenting organisational histories. Her work has included written publications, radio and film documentaries, and on-line digital storytelling projects.

Megan Hutching, Editor, Writer. Megan is an acclaimed historian and oral historian. She has produced fifteen published publications (some co-authored), as well as article-length pieces, and content for museum and website exhibitions.

Richard Howard, Writer. Richard has had a career in theatre, event management and recreation promotion for Auckland City. He has also worked as an independent production management, an arts resources cooperative project, The Big Idea web project, as well as coaching and consultancy.

Yvonne Powley, Photographer. Yvonne became Executive Officer of Auckland North Community and Development in 2009.
